

The Florida Bar Appoints Jane Kreuzler-Walsh To Civil Procedure Rules Committee

July 18, 2012

Jane Kreuzler-Walsh, owner of the boutique appellate law firm Kreuzler-Walsh, Compiani & Vargas, has been appointed to The Florida Bar's Civil Procedure Rules Committee. With over 30 years of experience, Kreuzler-Walsh is board-certified in Appellate Practice and Martindale-Hubbell AV-rated, the highest possible mark for competency and ethics.

The scope and function of the Civil Procedure Rules Committee is to carry out the mandate of Rule 2.140, Florida Rules of Judicial Administration, concerning the proposal of new rules of procedure and changes to existing rules. Kreuzler-Walsh joins 49 attorneys throughout Florida and will serve a three year term on the committee.

"I look forward to actively participating in the evaluation of rules relating to Florida procedure," says Kreuzler-Walsh. "I embrace the opportunity to work with colleagues throughout the state to ensure that our civil rules are best serving the citizens of Florida."

Kreuzler-Walsh has argued numerous times in the Florida Supreme Court and all Florida District Courts of Appeal, with over 500 reported decisions. Last month, Kreuzler-Walsh was named a top attorney in Florida by Super Lawyers for the seventh consecutive year and was included among the publication's "The Top 100" and "The Top 50 Women" attorneys. She was also named Best Lawyers 2011 Appellate Lawyer of the Year for West Palm Beach and was named to Florida Trend's Legal Elite list of prominent attorneys.
